What can I expect to do as a Girl Scout?

Girl Scouts is all about fun, friendship and new adventures. You will make friends, challenge yourself, write your own story, and learn how to change the world for the better. Some Girl Scouts love to camp, some love to build things, some love to read, some love to learn, and so much more — the great thing is they get to do it with new friends!

What is the time commitment?

Most girls spend a few hours (3-4) every month working on badge projects and attending troop meetings/events.

What is the financial commitment?

The annual dues to join Girl Scouts is $25. There may also be small fees for activities and troop dues throughout the year. We want every girl to participate and the organization is deeply committed to ensuring that all girls are able to participate. Financial assistance is available to families in need.

Who can be a Girl Scout?

Girls in Kindergarten through grade 12 can join Girl Scouts. Girls progress through programming levels and each level offers challenges and opportunities for girls to learn and achieve.

Is it necessary to be part of a troop?

Not all Girl Scouts choose to be part of a troop. Some instead choose to be Juliettes, independent Girl Scouts who do not belong to a specific troop but do participate in activities, badge programs, camp, and cookie selling based on their interests.

Do I get to sell Girl Scout cookies?

Yes! You can be part of the largest girl-led business in the United States. You'll learn five important skills: goal setting, decision making, money management, people skills, and business ethics. Together as a team, you'll earn valuable proceeds that will support your troop's activities. While it is a great experience, cookie selling is not required.
