

ENFJ

EXTRAVERTED, INTUITIVE, FEELING, JUDGING

"THE GIVER"

All about ENFJs

The flexibility of these characteristics leave the ENFJ a lot of leeway in choosing a profession. As long as they're in a supportive environment in which they can work with people and are presented with sufficient diverse challenges to stimulate their creativity, they should do very well.

Character Traits

- Genuinely and warmly interested in people
- Value people's feelings
- Value structure and organization
- Value harmony, and good at creating it
- Exceptionally good people skills
- Dislike impersonal logic and analysis
- Strong organizational capabilities
- Loyal and honest
- Creative and imaginative
- Enjoy variety and new challenges
- Get personal satisfaction from helping others
- Extremely sensitive to criticism and discord
- Need approval from others to feel good about themselves

Possible Careers

Facilitator
Consultant
Psychologist
Social Worker
Counselor
Teacher
Clergy
Sales Representative
Human Resources
Manager
Events Coordinator
Politician
Diplomat
Writer

SOURCE

www.personalitypage.com

powered by

